Towering inferno rages at tyre site

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

A GIGANTIC tyre fire which forced residents to seal their homes to keep out the fumes is still burning – a week after it started.

Littleport and nearby villages came to a standstill last Friday when 200 tonnes of tyres went up in flames at tyre recycling plant, Murfitts.

People looked on in shock and motorists driving along the A10 pulled over as thick black smoke filled the skies and fire crews rushed to the industrial area on Wisbech Road.

Firefighters from Ely and Littleport were first on the scene at about 3.15pm but the size of the blaze meant back-up from stations across the county was required.

Ten crews in total fought to put out the inferno, including fire engines from Soham, Sutton, Cambridge, Huntingdon, Downham Market, Chatteris and March.

But on Saturday, Cambridgeshire Fire and Rescue Service announced it would have to let the fire burn out.

Residents were urged to keep their homes sealed and were warned that the blaze could smoulder for "several days".

Experts from Oxford were drafted in to assess what to do with the fire and they deemed it safe to burn out.

The fire itself caused several large explosions when a diesel tank and gas canisters blew up in the intense heat.

As well as the massive piles of tyres, two large industrial buildings were destroyed in the inferno, which forced the closure of the road until Monday.

Employees at nearby businesses, including those on E-Space North business park, were also evacuated from their premises as the blaze continued to rage.

And as crews battled to put out the flames well into the evening, the smoke could be seen from as far away as Wisbech and Mildenhall.

Raging: left, an aerial photograph captures the true scale of the blaze facing firefighters, above.

Derek Hunt, who was one of dozens of motorists who pulled over to see the blaze, said: "I have never seen anything like it."

"At first I thought it was a big storm but the closer I got the more I realised it was actually thick smoke."

"It's like something you see in a movie."

Another passer-by, Fiona Bridge-Holt, said: "I have just driven in from the Wisbech direction and you could see it in the distance."

Students record top set of results

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

TEENAGERS have raised the bar again by achieving another impressive set of A-Level results, with many schools recording pass rates close to 100 per cent.

Sixth-form students returned to their schools and colleges to collect their grades last Thursday – and bring an anxious summer of waiting to an end.

The King's School Ely boasted a record-breaking set of results, with 44 per cent of grades being As, and 70 per cent being at A or B, five per cent better than last year.

A total of 14 students achieved three or more A grades, and four – Veronika Faltermeier, Tanya Kogan, Xizhou Liu and Maia Tanner – achieved four A grades.

Overall, 87 per cent of results were graded A-C, with the A-E pass rate standing at 99 per cent.

Headteacher Sue Freestone said: "I am very proud of the achievements of this year's cohort of A-Level candidates.

"Throughout their time at King's they have been a year group that has been conspicuous in its giving to the wider life of the school, but that has never meant that the students have done anything but their best academically.

"Their results are thoroughly deserved and I know they will be great assets to whoever they work with in the years to come."

At the City of Ely Community College, 99 per cent of students achieved an A-E pass rate, the same figure as last year.

Almost 50 per cent of students achieved grades A-C.

Birthday surprise for Xi Zhou

WHEN Xi Zhou Liu arrived in England three years ago he spoke very little English – now he is one of four King's School Ely students who achieved four A grades at A-level.

Xi Zhou (pictured right) was among a cohort of international students who began a one-year GCSE course at King's in 2006. He achieved seven GCSEs, six of them at A or A*.

This outstanding achievement was acknowledged when he became King's first International Scholar, entitled to wear a scarlet-trimmed gown at Ely Cathedral services and on other special occasions.

King's International, opened 10 years ago, runs one and two-year GCSE courses which provide international students with the language and study skills to access a British boarding education.

Xi Zhou transferred into King's Sixth Form and was awarded A grades in A-Level chemistry, maths, further maths and physics, and has a place at Imperial College, London, to study chemistry.

The results were an early birthday present for Xi Zhou who turned 19 on Saturday.

age principal, said: "We congratulate all our students and wish them the best in their future endeavours.

"Particular congratulations go to Kirsten Jolly, who achieved grade A in English and grade B in history and theatre studies, and to Linas Karaveckas who achieved three A-levels, including a grade A in maths and an AS Level in further maths to secure his place to study aeronautical engineering at Kingston University."

Cllr David Harty, Cambridgeshire County Council's cabinet member for learning, said: "This is another set of highly impressive results.

"Yet again, A-Level students in Cambridgeshire have excelled and they are a credit to themselves, their teachers and their families."

Chippie's high hope for plaice

FISH and chip shops from across the region will be battling it out in a prestigious annual competition later this year.

And one of those taking part will be The Handy Plaice in Soham's Market Street, which is entering the Fish and Chip Shop of the Year contest 2009.

Now in its 22nd year, the competition recognises the shops producing the best fish and chips across the UK. Shops are also judged on their sustainable sourcing practices, customer service, hygiene and staff training.

To vote for your favourite chippie, visit the shop and complete a voting form.

The winners will be announced in January 2010.

Get glimpse of hidden spaces

USUALLY unseen areas of Ely Cathedral will be on show to the public on Bank Holiday Monday.

A special Tour and Tea event will be held at the ancient landmark from 2-4pm.

Visitors will be able to discover parts of the monastic precincts and gardens that are normally closed to the public.

Cream teas will also be served throughout the afternoon.

Tickets are £5 and available from Chapter House or by calling (01353) 660300.

The event has been organised by the Monastic Buildings Group and all proceeds will go towards new equipment for the cathedral's education centre.

Pupils set to get new ball court

LITTLEPORT Community Primary School could soon boast a new netball court – if planners agree.

Cambridgeshire County Council has applied to East Cambridgeshire District Council to build a full size court at the school, on Parsons Lane.

The proposals include other external work, including a 2.4m-high fenced area, hard and soft landscaping, a security gate and trellis screen around the pre-school area.

A decision is expected within the next two months.

French club for petit learners

A NEW children's French club has been set up in Ely.

The club, which kicks off on Saturday, September 5, will be run by two French native speakers called Christina and Marie.

Lessons will be held every Saturday from 10-11am and are for children aged 5 to 11. The club is being held at The Lighthouse Centre, on Lynn Road.

Fire still going at tyre site

Kathy Brumpton, E-Space North centre manager, which is next door to Murfitts, said: "There were some businesses which have decided to close instead of keeping their buildings sealed and many employees went home.

"The smoke is still thick and it has been a great inconvenience but it is just one of things that you have to deal with."

Even though the road has now been re-opened, the fire is still smouldering and the smoke is thick.

People suffering with any symptoms such as coughing are being urged to contact their GPs or NHS Direct.

Air tests have been carried out by the Environment Agency (EA) which found no detectable levels of toxins present. Watercourses were also sampled, but there has been no impact.

Richard Bowen, EA strategic manager, said "This was initially a very serious incident but we worked well with our partners at Cambridgeshire Fire and Rescue Service and East Cambridgeshire District Council's environmental health department and kept it under control."

The fire is expected to have gone out fully by the end of the weekend.

Outraged: residents in Witchford are up in arms after plans for a new recycling centre at the entrance to the village were given the go ahead.

Picture: Duncan Lamont 588662

Residents fight back over new recycling centre

OUTRAGED residents are making a last-ditch attempt to prevent a state-of-the-art recycling centre coming to their village.

Plans for a new indoor recycling facility in Witchford have already been given the go-ahead, but residents are now campaigning to prevent it from being built.

Residents claim the centre will ruin the entrance to the village, increase HGV traffic coming through the area.

Gary Griffiths, of Ely Road, has met Witchford parish councillor George Jellicoe to try and halt the scheme in its tracks. The 61-year-old said: "Who would want a big recycling centre at the entrance to their village when there are so many other sites in the area it could go? It would be so much better at Ely's Angel Drove or somewhere like that.

"There are literally hundreds of people, both in our village and surrounding ones, that hate these plans but we have not been listened to. One of Cambridgeshire's prettiest villages cannot be ruined by this being built at its entrance."

Cllr Jellicoe, who lives on Main Street, said the parish council had been against the plans since they first came to light back 2006.

He said: "This recycling centre will affect so many residents in such a negative way. But no matter what I, other councillors, and our constituents have said, the planners made the choice to pass the plans.

"The facility itself is exceptional and the majority of people realise that, but its location is not."

District councillors Gareth Wilson and Ian Allen, who both represent Haddenham, have also raised concerns about the affects the project will have on villages' roads.

Cllr Tony Orgee, lead member for economy and the environment at Cambridgeshire County Council, said: "We have been speaking with the local community since 2005, and we have listened carefully to everything local residents have said.

"We have assessed numerous alternative sites put forward by the local community but the site at Witchford has consistently come up as the best site.

"We will establish a site liaison group so the local community can be involved even more closely with the project before work starts on construction."

The new centre is set to open in autumn 2010. It will replace the Grunty Fen recycling centre, which currently deals with over 6,000 tons of residents' waste every year.

Green days ahead

RESIDENTS are being reminded about the City of Ely and District Horticultural Society's Great Autumn Show this weekend.

Everything from flowers to fruit to photography will be on show at the Paradise Sports Hall on Saturday and Sunday.

Then on Saturday, September 5, the society will hold an RHS Dig Together Day, which is aimed to get people outdoors and learning more about their local garden club.

The Mayor of Ely, Cllr Richard Hobbs, will formally opening the event at 11am and it will be running in the grounds of the Ely Beet Social Club, on Lynn Road, until 3pm.

There will be bulbs on sale, cheap garden ornaments, refreshments and an opportunity to join the society.

Magical fundraiser

AN evening of magic and music will be raising money for St George's Church in Littleport next Wednesday. The event, from 7.30pm onwards, will be held at the village hall and will include a Punch and Judy show, theatre productions, music and magic shows.

Tickets, which are available on the door, are £6 for adults and £4 for children.

Refreshments will also be served.

Focus on the new

NEW arrivals at Ely Museum will be the subject of a talk on Thursday, September 3.

Elie Hughes, the museum's curator, will host a talk entitled "New Acquisitions at Ely Museum" at 7.30pm.

Entry is £1 for members and £1.50 for non members.

Royal row as post workers walk out

THOUSANDS of people will not receive their mail today as postal workers in Ely and Soham go on strike.

The Communication Workers' Union (CWU) has confirmed that workers employed at both Ely and Cambridge delivery offices will take industrial action for 24 hours.

It comes after Royal Mail announced it was to reduce the workforce in offices up and down the country, including 17 employees in Ely and its surrounding villages.

The strike will also affect residents living in Haddenham and Isleham.

Steve Butts, a CWU spokesman, said union members claimed Royal Mail's plans were "unrealistic".

He said: "Our members are very sad to have to make the decision to strike but the truth is that the actions of Royal Mail have left our members with no other real alternative.

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

"Royal Mail's plans are about setting unrealistic work rates that they expect our members to perform on a daily basis, like walking at 4mph for nearly four hours a day.

"The plans before our members will result in unacceptable levels of work related stress as Royal Mail will point the finger of failure at individual workers' performance rather than admit their planning assumptions are wrong.

"It is worth recording that we have not had any local industrial action in the Cambridge delivery area for nearly 20 years now, but these plans are totally unrealistic and unachievable.

"Our members are very frustrated by the actions of their employer."

Royal Mail plans to cut 10 jobs in Ely, three in Soham, two in Sutton and one each in Littleport and Isleham.

It has already cut the city's night shift and reduced the postal service in Wilburton from two postmen to one.

Union members have blasted the proposed cuts, claiming they will also reduce earning potential and take-home pay.

They also believe it will severely worsen the postal service to the public and businesses throughout the region.

In a bid to solve the issue, the CWU has offered Royal Mail a three-month moratorium from all industrial action but this offer was rejected.

A Royal Mail spokesman said: "We condemn the CWU for striking over much-needed modernisation and change which has already been successfully implemented by our people in the majority of offices around the UK and is working well."

Fair celebrates the best of country

THE annual Fenland country fair, which regularly attracts more than 20,000 people, is being held again this Bank Holiday weekend.

For more than 30 years, the fair has offered traditional rural entertainment, including shooting competitions, gun dog displays, vintage vehicles and a large number of country stalls at Stow-cum-Quy Park.

This year there will be a display of fly-fishing by world record holder and TV personality Hywel Morgan.

With free admission for children under 11, there will also be plenty of activities to keep young people entertained including steam gallopers, archery and a falconry display. There will also be a dog show and terrier racing. Other animal attractions include heavy horses and sheepdog displays.

Entry for the show, which is open from 9am-5.30pm on Sunday and Monday is £8.50 for adults. For more details contact (01485) 528954 or visit www.fenlandfairs.com

Fund hopes dashed as walkers fail to sign up

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

AN event which could have raised thousands of pounds for a charity care home facing closure has been cancelled.

Sue Ryder Care had organised the Midnight Walk to take place in Ely on Saturday.

With hundreds of women expected to take part in the 10km event, bosses had hoped it would raise considerable funds for the city's Sue Ryder care home, The Old Palace.

But the female-orientated event has been cancelled after just 20 women signed up to take part. The blow comes less than a month after it emerged that the home, which caters for people with life-limiting illnesses, could be forced to close.

Located near Ely Cathedral, the ancient building is no longer suitable for use as a care centre and staff, patients and their families are currently mid-way through a 90-day consultation period looking at possibly closing it down.

Sue Ryder Care has described having to cancel the Midnight Walk as a "massive shame".

Steve Taylor, spokesman for the charity, said: "This is the first time we had organised one of our Midnight Walks to take place in Ely and we are gutted it has had to be cancelled.

"Others that we organise are hugely successful and raise thousands of pounds for us. But we have literally had 20 people showing an interest in the event in Ely.

"With all the costs and permissions involved in staging the walk, that amount does not make it viable.

"It is a massive shame as if it had been a success the money would have gone a long way into helping the situation we are in."

The building, formerly home to bishops of Ely, is currently running at a deficit of £240,000 a year.

Sue Ryder Care bosses say they cannot afford to bring the building up to the standards of the Care Quality Commission, which highlighted it as unsuitable as a care home. For more, visit www.suerydercare.org

Wood art fans turn out for new display

WOODTURNERS from across the region flocked to Ely on Saturday to show off some of their crafty creations.

Everything from beautiful bowls to comfy chairs took over the city's cathedral at the Ely Guild of Woodturners' annual summer exhibition.

Entitled Art in Wood, the event, which attracted hundreds of people, was officially opened by the Bishop of Huntingdon, the Right Rev David Thomson.

And visitors were not only able to cast their eye over the wooden sculptures, but also purchase them.

The exhibition runs at the cathedral centre until Monday. It is open 10am-5pm daily and entry is free.

Boys' 106-mile ride for charity

TWO friends have done a sponsored bike ride from Ely to Hunstanton and back to raise money for a plaque at the city's war memorial.

Ben Norris and Harry Atkinson, both members of the City of Ely Youth Council, organised the 106-mile bike ride together with an adult and four other riders aged 13 to 15.

The ride took place on July 4 and 5, with the journey taking five hours each way and raising about £1,000 towards the plaque, and the children's hospice at Milton.

The group also received a cheque from Marshall Specialist Vehicles in Cambridge, where Ben's mother Adrienne Tuck works, in recognition of the achievement.

Terry Holloway, group support executive from Marshall of Cambridge, said: "We are very proud of our employees and their families who play such an active part in the local community."

"The cycle ride was a magnificent effort on the part of Ben and his friends and the company was delighted to provide some additional money towards their fundraising."

Present: Adrienne Tuck, Ben Norris, Harry Atkinson and Terry Holloway.

United plan for property website

ILIFFE News and Media – publisher of the Weekly News – is joining forces with two other independent regional press groups to commission one of the world's leading property portal developers to produce a new level of online property website.

The company, along with Midlands News Association and the Baylis Media Group, has engaged world-renowned technology providers Collabera to deliver a web offering for our estate agents and homehunters which will match and better the major national property sites.

A launch is planned for early 2010 and it is being developed with the capability to allow other regional press groups to also take the service.

David Fordham, chief executive of Iliffe News and Media, said: "This is an exciting development that we believe will provide our estate agents with a truly competitive alternative to the likes of Rightmove."

Ex-husband who fired gun at house faces jail

A MAN has been warned he could face jail after firing a gun at his ex-wife's house.

Shane Stevens, 38, shattered Stephanie Stevens' kitchen window with a shot while her 18-year-old son was in the room.

The incident happened on June 17 after he discovered she was living with their five-year-old daughter in Haddenham.

Stevens was on bail at the time for assaulting his mother.

Laura Mardell, prosecuting, said: "Mrs Stevens had been in an 11-year relationship with him before it ended."

"She was in her living room when she heard a car outside her property."

"There was then a loud bang that sounded like a brick had been thrown through the window. Her son then ran through saying the kitchen window had been broken."

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

The next day, Mrs Stevens received a number of telephone calls from her ex-husband.

Stevens admitted on the phone that he had broken the window by firing a gun.

Miss Mardell added: "He told police he wanted to really hurt her, not in a physical way, but in a mental way."

Stevens, of Orchard Estate, Little Downham, pleaded guilty to possessing a shotgun in a public place when he appeared at Ely Magistrates' Court.

He also pleaded guilty to criminal damage for breaking the glass.

Guy Holland, mitigating, said: "The gun was a pistol and can be purchased legitimately."

"My client has used guns like this for target practice, which is why it was in the car at the time."

He added: "Mr Stevens has a long-standing problem with anxiety and depression, which all stems back to a rather unfortunate upbringing."

The bench heard that the offence was committed while he was on bail for assaulting his mother for which he was given a six-month community order on July 31.

Sue Griffin, presiding magistrate, said her sentencing powers were not strong enough and committed the case to Cambridge Crown Court.

She said: "Not only did you have this weapon on you but you fired it at a house where you knew there were people present."

Stevens was released on conditional bail and told not to contact Mrs Stevens or her immediate family and to not visit Wilburton or Haddenham.

Food is also a morality issue

Sir, Tony Juniper accuses me of looking back to the 1950s (Looking back to 50s, not on – Letters, August 20).

Well, I can look back to the 1930s (just) and the 1940s as well as the 1950s and I accept that Mr Juniper may not remember or know much about the food and other rationing that we had then.

“Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it” (George Santayana). Quite frankly, I would rather not repeat the 1940s or the 1950s so far as the availability of food is concerned, nor would I wish our younger people to have the experiences that I had then for want of sensible attitudes to make the best of our natural resources, our fine food-producing Cambridgeshire Fen land.

I, and my most recent correspondent friends – Tony Day of Wicken, Don MacKay of Cambridge, Alfred Sennitt and Alan Seymour of Ely and Graham Smith of Little Eversden – can all see that top-quality food-producing land deliberately removed from food production for the National Trust’s so-called Wicken Vision means less food produced here and more food coming from abroad.

If those abroad can no longer produce the food or cannot spare the food or won’t sell us the food or we cannot afford to buy the food, the result is that we have less food for ourselves. Mr Juniper claims that “times have moved on”. Sure, they have, but so have the populations of most countries in the world. It is even more stupid now to take out of food production the finest food-producing land in England at a time when it is increasingly apparent that we as a country – and we with responsibilities in the wider world – have to prepare for a global population of nine billions plus and the possibility of climate change adversely affecting the food supplies of many of the world’s presently existing people, including our own 60 million.

This issue is as much about morality as it is reality. The reality is that the world is becoming increasingly short of food and it is close to immoral to import unnecessarily from those who have less than us already. Hilary Benn is 100 per cent right in calling for a big increase in food production here at home. Who is going to argue against the Defra Secretary? I am not and I respectfully suggest that Mr Juniper desists, too. He should stop acting like a middle-aged “Swampy” striving towards a “vision” that is already a mirage.

Last week’s Memories photograph, from our archives, showed Haddenham Rovers collecting their Ball of the Month. It was taken in April, 1978.

Readers Doug Few could name the players. There are, front front left, Andy Ashfield, Andy Peacock, Stuart Norman, Kevin Narrow, Kelvin Holden and Frank Jaggard, with Roy Woodbridge, holding the ball. At the back is Colin Butler.

He said the team received the ball after completing the month unbeaten.

A reader also wrote in with memories of our August 13 picture. Mrs A. Fuller said the picture showed Peter Fuller and his mate Jacko taken outside the Ely Youth Centre almost 30 years ago.

Memories also came flooding back to Carol Driver, of Woodfen Road, Littleport, who recognised our picture on August 6 which showed a presentation to Nurse Railton in 1969. She said: “It was probably taken at the Prickwillow Welfare Centre. Nurse Kathleen Railton spent 21 years in Littleport, many of those with her colleague, Nurse Con Biart. They were our local midwives and were loved by all the mums and children and had many tales of their journeys along fen roads and muddy droves, especially on dark winter nights.

“There will be many grandparents who will remember these two home midwives with gratitude and affection, myself being just one of those.”

which the mayor claims makes the city centre look “depressing”. I quite agree, and with the emphasis being on “keep it local” and following all the recent furore over out-of-town developments, which have been slated by certain authorities, why is this prime location still vacant?

I do try to shop local as much as I can but the variety of shops in Ely is not what one would expect of such a developing area. We have so many more residents but so much less choice than other similarly sized communities. If out-of-town developments are to be avoided – which I think is ridiculous with the restricted size of the city centre – then there should be a real push to get all empty premises occupied as quickly as possible.

The suggestion of a permanent indoor market is brilliant. It could be just what Ely needs and would have the advantage of daily instead of twice weekly market stalls and give small businesses an alternative to renting/buying an entire premises only to be forced out within months (as we see all too frequently). Having the main market day as a Thursday is limiting to those who work out of town, especially with the ever increasing parking shortage, so a permanent market would enable us all to benefit.

I look forward to reading more on the matter

Why the rush to fill empty shop?

Sir, Regard your Woolworths story, rather an empty shop in the market square than a “downmarket express” run from Angel Drove.

Waste site plan is a great idea

Sir, I am all for this new Witchford waste site (Fears over traffic at new waste site – Weekly News, August 13) as it will be the best thing for old pensioners as we can walk level with the side of the waste trailer, and just tip it in, where as down in Gruntney Fen we have to climb up steps. This can prove a bit strenuous for us old folk, or we have to look around for a council man to carry it for us, and they are always very busy with the convoy of cars and trucks.

This will not put any extra traffic through the village. It will, I would have thought, create less traffic as this will be on the Ely side of the village, so that means we will not have to go into the village at all. It’s the same with lorries – they can stay on the bypass and turn at the roundabout. Builders’ lorries are the same – straight in to the waste trailers, meaning they will not go into the village.

When the councillors finally do get it right there is always someone that finds something wrong. Wouldn’t it be nice if, for once, the people said “Great, a good idea”. I think some people like moaning for the sake of moaning.

Muddy beast crawls out of the fens

A MYSTICAL beast was stalking a nature reserve near Ely last week.

But visitors to White Fen, near Lode, had no reason to be alarmed – the creature was created as part of a free wild art event organised by the National Trust.

Youngsters visited the reserve to help Simon Richardson, landscape artist, make the "water beast" using straw, willow and mud.

Wicken Fen learning officer, Katie Fenton, who spearheaded the idea, said: "The whole idea of the Wicken Fen Vision is to encourage people to escape to the countryside for leisure and recreation. This event gave families a great day out in the countryside and introduced them to one of the less visited areas of the vision lands."

Firm and boss fined over safety breach

A CAMBRIDGESHIRE firm and its director have each been fined £7,000 after a man had to have part of his leg amputated following a fall at work.

Fenland Electrical Network Services Limited, of Cottenham, and director Nicholas McCarthy pleaded guilty to charges of breaching the Health and Safety at Work Act, brought by the Health and Safety Executive (HSE).

Ely magistrates heard last week that on December 17, 2007 a group of linesmen were training for an emergency descent from a mobile elevated work platform. One man fell because his harness was not attached.

The 59-year-old linesman suffered a fractured pelvis, spinal injuries, extensive tendon damage to his left ankle, and an injury to his right leg, which was later amputated below the knee.

The firm, at Willow Acre, Twenty Pence Road, and McCarthy, of the same address, were each fined £7,000 and must pay £5,503.20 each to make up full costs of £11,006.40.

Gavin Bull, HSE inspector, said the case highlighted the need for safety measures.

Concert for air medics

A CHARITY concert will raise money for the East Anglian Air Ambulance. The Fordham Charity Group's Autumn Charity Concert will feature the 18-piece Galaxy Big Band.

The concert will be staged at Beechurst Hall, Soham, on Saturday, September 26. Tickets, price £10, are available from Eric Tennant's Butchers, in Newmarket's Guineas centre, Soham Books, High Street, Soham, DN Jenkins TV shop, Fordham, or by calling (01638) 720674.

Arson attack on waste bin

ARSONISTS set fire to a recycling bank in Chatteris.

One crew from the town was called to an area in a car park off Furrowfields Road. Paper in the recycling bank was set alight at around 5.15pm last Thursday.

Fire-fighters used one hose reel jet to extinguish the blaze and returned to base at 5.40pm.

The cause of the fire was deliberate.

More teams take on race for funds

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

More and more people are signing up for the Ely Riverside Relay 2009.

For those who haven't, you have just weeks left to put your best foot forward for the fundraising extravaganza, which is backed by the Weekly News as the event's major media partner.

Russell's estate agents, located on Ely's Fore Hill, is the latest company to enter a team in the sponsored race.

Like headline sponsor, Archer and Archer, and dozens of other companies in the city, four members of staff from the firm will be donning their trainers for the massive event on Sunday, September 27.

Launched last year, the relay raised a staggering £4,000 for the Arthur Rank Hospice Charity in Cambridge – an adult hospice which helps patients and their loved ones, including those in and around Ely, deal with the challenges presented by life-limiting illnesses.

Maria Morgan, an agent at Russell's, knows only too well how the charity helped her grandmother, Vera Morgan, five years ago as she battled the breast cancer that eventually killed her.

Mrs Morgan said: "My grandmother battled breast cancer for 21 years in total but four months before her death she had to go into a hospice.

"Arthur Rank was absolutely fantastic and they really are very special people there.

"We want to raise as much money as we can to make sure other people continue to receive the care that she did."

Emma Kennedy, Stella Brown and Alison Holmes, all from Russell's, will also be taking part.

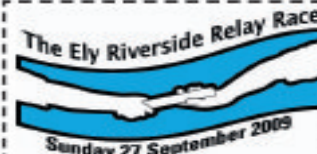

Other sponsors this year include Grovemere Property and Michell Instruments but the charity is still seeking as many sponsors as possible.

Teams of four can be made up of friends, family or work colleagues at a cost of £40 per team.

The race starts and finishes in Ely's stunning Jubilee Gardens and is for both runners and walkers.

Two runners will each cover a 3km route and two walkers will cover a 1km path, covering a total of 8km.

For more information, visit www.arch.org.uk or fill out the entry form on this page.

Great garden pulls in charity windfall

A STRETHAM couple who opened their garden to the public last Sunday have raised more than £700 for charity. Pauline and Bernard Grey, of Old Stretham Station Road, took part in the National Gardens Scheme by welcoming people to their garden, Breakaway. Almost 200 people flocked in to see the couple's special knot garden, water features and summerhouse. And visitors were in their element in the exotic jungle area, which boasts bananas, gingers and bamboos. The couple also treated people to cream teas.

Mrs Grey said: "Our garden is our pride and joy and to welcome so many people into it was such a pleasure.

"We are delighted with the amount of money we raised, which will go to a number of charities, including Marie Curie, Macmillan Cancer and Help the Hospices."

Dancing man John moves into the 90s

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

A veteran ballet dancer who found world-wide fame with an Ely dance company celebrated his 90th birthday with a dance performance.

John Lowe attracted media attention from across the world after the Weekly News revealed he was starring in a production of Prokofiev's ballet The Stoneflower at the age of 88.

He appeared with the Lantern Dance Theatre Company last Thursday in the Lady Chapel of Ely Cathedral in a concert to mark his 90th birthday.

Dancing alongside young dancers, the retired art teacher performed a specially arranged routine to music from Strauss's An Artist's Life.

Mr Lowe, who lives in Witchford, said: "It was a fantastic occasion in a magnificent venue."

"It was also the first time that I've had to interact with other dancers, so it was a good test for me."

The show also featured new work by some of the company's young dance makers and performances by guest artists, including former members of the company who are doing well in higher education specialising in dance.

Among them were Tim Rayne, who is studying choreography at Northumbria University, Tony Wilson, who is doing contemporary dance at Newcastle College, and Alessandra Wellen, who achieved first class honours in creative expressive therapies at Derby University.

Current member Sophie Wilton is about to begin a BA in dance theatre at Laban, the world-famous dance conservatoire in London.

Helen Pettit, the Lantern's artistic director, said: "We are very proud of all these high achievers, who have all played a part in Lantern's development and have given their time and talent to the cause of integrated dance."

"They are also great performers and the show was all the richer for their participation."

"Lantern Dance Theatre is an integrated dance group. About half its members have disabilities. They meet for company class where the rules are simple: come every week, treat everyone with respect, help each other, train hard and perform full on."

Farmer faces charge of neglecting birds

A FARMER is accused of seriously neglecting three pet parrots.

John Smith, of Cophall Drove, Pymoor, is charged with causing unnecessary suffering to an African grey parrot, a red-fronted Amazon parrot and a Princess parakeet.

The 75-year-old, who only has one arm, is also charged with failing to provide them a suitable environment protecting them from pain, suffering or disease.

Police officers are said to have come across the birds during a raid on his farm on March 25.

Smith appeared at Ely Magistrates' Court last Thursday where no pleas were entered.

The case was adjourned to Thursday, September 3 for legal aid to be arranged.

Smith was released on unconditional bail.

Dying for a challenge? Take Death Race test

Survival: former Royal Marine Richard Lee.

AN INTREPID former King's School Ely student is celebrating after completed one of the world's deadliest challenges.

Ex-Royal Marine Richard Lee has not only survived to tell the tale of the gruelling Death Race but he also finished joint first.

One minute, the 27-year-old was walking the Appalachian Trail in Pittsfield, Vermont, with his girlfriend to collect a food parcel. The next he had signed up for the Death Race, a 24-hour test of extreme physical and psychological stamina.

With around 15 tasks, such as crawling through a drainage ditch through barbed wire and stinging nettles, competitors have to sign a waiver stating "I might die" before they start.

And despite having little experience of adventure racing and only days to prepare for the challenge,

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

Lee, who grew up in Ely, finished joint first with US Marine, Tom Worthington.

Richard, who was born at the Princess of Wales Hospital, attended the King's School Ely before studying an adventure education degree at Chichester University.

His parents, Maureen and Peter, live in Stretham.

Richard was also a keen Scout as a youngster and was one of the founding members of the Haddenham Army Cadets.

The challenge itself saw around 50 people start, but only six, including Richard, finished within the 24 hours.

Other tasks included climbing to the top of a massive hill with items such as an axe, bike and a tree stump.

But when at the top, competitors, if they made it, had to memorise the names of the first 10 presidents of the United States.

Richard said: "The Death Race was very tough and they make it very easy to give up.

"But if you have done a couple of years of training similar to the Marines, you will be surprised by what you can actually do.

"My time at King's also helped me out as there I was introduced to obstacle courses, surviving outdoors and various aspects that helped me in the race.

"This initial contact with the outdoors really fuelled my passion for adventure racing."

Having completed the challenge, Richard only took a week off before preparing himself to start the 2,175 miles of the Appalachian Trail again.

Quacking good fun by the river

MALLARDS may have had their feathers rustled but a sponsored duck race has raised more than £1,000 for charity.

Bright yellow ducks, of the plastic variety, were released on to the river in Mepal last weekend to help raise funds for the Ely Lions.

Revellers were treated to a barbecue at The Three Pickerels pub and fun activities on the river's edge.

The money raised will be divided between emergency medical charity Magpas, the Mepal Sports Action Group and Mepal and Witcham Primary School.

Amy Pettit, a spokeswoman for Ely Lions, said: "The duck race was absolutely brilliant and raised a considerable sum of money for local good causes."

"We would like to thank everyone for their support, especially those who helped recover the ducks at the end of the race!"

Race day: young contestants pick out their ducks before the start. CP

Trial date for man in danger driving case

A MOTORIST alleged to have caused a crash in which a passenger was badly injured has pleaded not guilty to a charge of dangerous driving.

Aaron Collins, of Newtown Road, Haddenham, denied the offence when he appeared at Cambridge Crown Court.

Lindsay Cox, prosecuting, said the 21-year-old had been drinking on March 15 and decided to drive a friend's BMW.

On West End in Wilburton, the car hit a bollard after riding a grass verge for several hundred metres, Mr Cox said.

The car spun round twice and a passenger suffered serious injuries. A police officer estimated the car had been travelling at 60mph on the 30mph road, the court heard.

Danielle O'Donovan, defending, said Collins had not been speeding and said the BMW had mounted the kerb to avoid an animal.

Judge Gareth Hawkesworth adjourned the case for trial in the week beginning October 5, and released Collins on unconditional bail until his next appearance.

Conveyor fire at grain store

A CONVEYOR at one of Cambridgeshire's largest grain storage companies caught fire on Wednesday, August 19. One fire crew from March and another from Chatteris were called to the blaze at Fengrain, Wimbington, at around 3.30am. Crews arrived to find a fire in the electrical motor area of a grain store. Firefighters wore breathing apparatus and used two hose reel jets to extinguish the blaze.

The cause of the fire is believed to be accidental but a report on the incident has not yet been concluded.

Outbuilding is set to go

AN OUTBUILDING in Fordham could be demolished in order to extend a property. Mr S. Ridgeon, of Carter Street, wants to make room for a single storey extension to the rear of his property by knocking the outbuilding down. A planning application has been submitted to East Cambridgeshire District Council. For more information about the proposals, visit www.eastcambs.gov.uk

Better access bid for farm

A FARM in the village of Pymoor could soon boast better access routes onto the B1411. The owners of Willow Farm want to make improvements to their existing access onto the road. A planning application has been submitted to East Cambridgeshire District Council and a decision on the changes is expected within the next eight weeks. Plans for growth get go-ahead

PLANS to develop and control growth in East Cambridgeshire up until 2025 have been approved by the Government's planning inspector.

The Core Strategy, part of the district council's local development framework, sets out the strategy and vision for delivering growth in the district.

The document outlines a need for 5,000 new homes across the district, including on the edge of Ely and Soham, a country park, four new primary schools for Ely, Soham and Littleport and a new secondary school in the area.

The strategy also puts in place policy to increase the number of affordable housing in East Cambridgeshire.

Work is now progressing on identifying the sites where this proposed growth will be allocated.

Cllr Peter Moakes, chairman of the council's strategic development committee, said: "A huge amount of work has gone into the development of the core strategy.

"It is an incredibly important piece of work which will have lasting implications for the district.

"I think the legacy of the strategy will be in making sure affordable homes become the norm in all developments and Section 106 contributions are made to support smaller communities throughout the whole of East Cambridgeshire.

"I believe that is something the council and those who have put the document together can be very proud of."

Catch up on old Fenland ways

Passing on tricks of the trade: eel catcher Peter Carter.

CAMBRIDGESHIRE'S last remaining eel catcher, Peter Carter, will be sharing his skills with members of the public.

Residents will be able to spend the day with Mr Carter at Wicken Fen Nature Reserve on Saturday, September 5.

The reserve has organised "A Fenman's Day", which will help people learn more about traditional Fenland practices and hobbies.

Participants will be able to set eel traps and experience some wildfowling, in a harmless way.

There will also be the chance to witness a punt gun in action.

The event starts at 10.30am and tickets are £40.

Mr Carter recently handed over a bucket of eels to the Bishop of Ely, which hundreds of years ago, Fenland villagers would do as a method of paying taxes.

For more information, call the reserve on (01353) 720274.

Tributes to respected ex-mayor

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

TRIBUTES have been paid to one of Ely's "most remarkable figures" who has died following a long period of illness.

Derek Crawley, who was mayor of the city three times, passed away last Thursday morning.

His death has not only devastated family and friends but dozens of community groups and organisations across the city.

The Mayor of Ely, Cllr Richard Hobbs, also a close friend of Mr Crawley's, said: "Words cannot express enough what an amazing man Derek was."

"He lived and breathed the city of Ely and gave up so much of his time for it and its people."

"The fact he was mayor three times shows how highly-respected he was and he was a man that made such exceptional judgements."

"Many of the policies that our councils are using today have been greatly influenced by Derek."

"Derek was also excellent with finance and had a real foresight. He will be greatly missed by so many."

In October, Mr Crawley was set to receive Freeman of Ely status from the city council, the highest honour possible and Cllr Hobbs thinks it should still be granted in his memory.

Mr Crawley was a Rotarian for more than 25 years and was recently awarded Greatly missed:

Derek Crawley served as mayor three times and was also a Rotary Club member for more than 25 years.

Rotary International's highest honour for his dedicated service to the organisation.

Spending more than two decades as the club's president, he raised thousands of pounds for charities across the world.

Tony Brady, president of the Rotary Club, said: "Derek was a respected member of Rotary who has served the club as president, secretary and treasurer over the years, as well as his work for the community in Ely."

Mr Crawley was also involved with the Ely Horticultural Society, the City of Ely Community College, the Citizens Advice Bureaux and Dial-a-Ride.

Cllr Peter Cresswell, chairman of East Cambridgeshire District Council, said: "All members of East Cambridgeshire District Council are saddened to hear of the passing of Derek Crawley. Our sincere condolences and sympathy go to his family."

Band hopes song tribute to heroes will boost charity

A rock band is aiming to raise £5,000 for a veterans' charity by releasing a record called Remembrance Day.

Soulweaver hopes to raise the money for the Help for Heroes fund from sales of their anthem in honour of British soldiers killed or injured in combat.

The song has already generated a massive buzz on the internet, attracting the attention of the music industry and veterans alike, prompting one festival organiser to invite the Cambridgeshire musicians to play at next year's event.

The song was performed publicly for the first time at the Five Miles from Anywhere pub, in Upware, and will be played at the St Neots Music Festival, which takes place over the August Bank Holiday.

BY JACK GROVE

Soulweaver frontman Goodge, who grew up in Ely and now lives in St Neots, said: "The song's chorus and the phrase 'cry a name for the unknown soldier' came to me during the run up to Remembrance Day last year after having online conversations with some veterans.

"It is not a topic I went out to write about but it kept coming to me and it sounded powerful.

"The idea wouldn't go away after last Remembrance Day and it just seems to have become a more and more relevant topic ever since.

"Every day we read or see on the news about more deaths or injuries in fighting. We hear about compensation issues, the last veterans who served in World War One have moved on and it just seems to get more emotive every day.

"It made me think of the human element, both in those men and women sticking their necks on the line in some far away land and in some of the very many veterans around you.

"We are having a very positive, and at times very emotional response from veterans who feel this song really fills a gap in communicating how they feel.

"Some Canadian troops, actually in Afghanistan, have commented on our myspace page 'thanks for combining your skills in a way that brings honour to soldier and country'.

"And a veteran in the UK emailed to say 'I did find the track, its entire production deeply moving . . . I have allowed a few veterans to hear it and it moved them to tears . . . this piece cuts right to the heart of what many civilians just don't get!"

GP college calls for care review

BY JORDAN DAY

Email: editorial@elyweeklynews.co.uk

A GERMAN doctor who killed a Cambridgeshire pensioner by accidentally giving him an overdose was told to go back to Germany "ASAP" by his employment agency, investigations have revealed.

It has been reported that Dr Daniel Ubani was also told to leave by the out-of-hours service, Take Care Now (TCN), for which he was working when he gave 70-year-old David Gray a dose of painkillers 10 times over the required amount.

Mr Gray's partner, Lynda Bubb, found him unconscious at their house in Manea after he was treated by Dr Ubani.

The doctor, who admitted he was "too tired" to concentrate after flying into the UK the previous day, is thought to have administered a fatal dose of 100mg of diamorphine and 4mg of buscopan.

In a letter, Dr Ubani told the family he was confused between the drugs pethidine and diamorphine, which he did not normally use in Germany.

In April, Dr Ubani was given a nine-month suspended prison sentence and fined £4,450 but he is still practising in the city of Witten.

Now Mr Gray's family are taking civil action against Dr Ubani, NHS Cambridgeshire, and TCN, the external firm which was providing the out-of-hours cover.

Dr Ubani treated about 15 people during his fateful shift in the UK, according to police.

The inquests into Mr Gray's death was opened and adjourned. It will resume at a later date.

The report in the Guardian also stated that moves to make Dr Ubani retake his medical examinations have begun in Germany.

However, there are no plans to have him struck off the German medical register.

Chris Banks, chief executive of NHS Cambridgeshire, has previously said: "We have supported the police in their investigation and we are disappointed that the doctor may not now be tried in the UK."

"Dr Ubani has been temporarily struck off the health register in the UK, but we are looking to work with our partners to ensure that all matters are referred to the General Medical Council so that they can consider making any suspension permanent."

It is also believed that in mitigation, Dr Ubani pleaded he had practised as a doctor for more than 20 years and that suspending him from working in the UK would be "very harsh".

TCN has refused to comment to the press about the revelations, as has Dr Ubani's solicitors.

The Royal College of GPs says provision of out-of-hours GP care must be reviewed. Chairman Prof Steve Field said: "I am worried about doctors from Europe flying in to provide out-of-hours care and then flying back."

"UK-trained doctors must reach the standard set by the college by passing our examination, which includes spending time in a training practice. European doctors don't necessarily have such rigorous assessments."

"The Cambridgeshire example shows the system has failed patients in that area."

Sir Peter's revival of Balmoral

IN the course of a long and prolific career, Michael Frayn has distinguished himself as a playwright, novelist, journalist, scriptwriter and philosopher.

But even this most celebrated of polymaths has met the occasional creative Waterloo, and Frayn is the first to concede his 1987 play, Balmoral, has run into the rough more than most.

"It's had a curiously chequered history," admits the 75-year-old. "It was originally done under this title in Guildford, years ago, with Fulton Mackay and Andrew Sachs. Then I rewrote it and it was done at the Greenwich Theatre under the title Liberty Hall, with George Cole. It was an extremely good production, but it somehow didn't catch people's fancy. So I'm very pleased to see someone's having another go at it."

That "someone" is no less than Sir Peter Hall, whose company has revived the comedy – set in an alternative history where the communist revolution took place in Britain, not Russia – for the Theatre

BY PAUL KIRKLEY

Royal Bath.

But it seems even this vote of approval – Theatreland's equivalent of a Papal blessing – hasn't been enough to entirely reverse the play's mixed fortunes: Last month, just a week before the curtain was due to go up, leading man Rik Mayall was forced to pull out through illness.

"It's disappointing," says Frayn. "I worked with Rik a few years ago, when we made a film called Remember Me. It wasn't a great success, but he was fantastically good in it."

But the show, inevitably, goes on, and the play will arrive at the Cambridge Arts Theatre this week with Mayall's understudy, Steve McNeil, stepping into the breach as Skinner, the warden at the titular Royal residence, which has now been turned over to a writers' commune.

"I learned Russian, originally at Cambridge, in the Army, actually," recalls Frayn of the play's genesis. "I used to go to Russia quite a lot in Writer's bloc: a scene from the current revival of Balmoral.

Soviet times, for various reasons. I first went as a student from Cambridge, and then as a journalist and I've been to see my work performed in Russia.

"So I got to know the country in those times fairly well, and I guess it just occurred to me that it might not have been Russia that turned Communist, it might have been this country, and I wondered what things would have been like, if we'd had a revolution and they hadn't."

Though he was born in London (with his boyhood experiences of the city during the Second World War forming much of the basis of his award-winning 2002 novel, Spies) and still lives there today, Cambridge has played a significant part in Frayn's life. Having started out reading French and Russian here, he spent the mid 1950s studying Moral Sciences at Emmanuel College. So what does Moral Sciences involve, exactly?

"That was the wonderful thing," he laughs, "no-one outside Cambridge had the faintest idea what Moral Sciences were, and not many people inside Cambridge."

"In fact not many people in the Moral Sciences faculty had much idea what it was."

"It was what is now called philosophy, and I think it's rather a pity they changed the name. It somehow sounded rather impressive to people who didn't know it was just boring old philosophy."

In fact, "boring old philosophy" has served Frayn rather well over the years, informing much of his subsequent work and even inspiring two well-received books on the subject, 1974's Constructions and 2006's The Human Touch.

"Philosophy is a way of thinking about things, and once you've started to think about the world in that kind of way, you go on thinking about it like that," he says.

"And I suppose Cambridge philosophy was one particular philosophical tradition, one particular way of thinking about the world. And I found it quite illuminating, and quite fruitful. I've gone on thinking about things, not exactly in the same way, but in the way that was set off by Cambridge."

Frayn's wife Claire Tomalin, the acclaimed biographer of the likes of Thomas Hardy, Jane Austen and Samuel Pepys, also studied at Cambridge. Did they find they shared similar memories of the city?

"Well she read English, and I was never any good at studying literature, so I could never have studied English," says Frayn. "I gaze open-mouthed in awe at her ability to understand text and to think of criticism. And I don't think she's honestly much interested in philosophy."

"But we both enjoyed Cambridge very much and we both got a great deal out of it in our different ways."

■ Balmoral is at Cambridge Arts Theatre this week until Saturday at 7.45pm (Thurs/Sat matinees 2.30pm). Tickets £10/15/20. Contact: (01223) 503333/www.cambridgeartstheatre.com

Dance choice

A DANCE studio in Ely is holding more different lessons than ever. As well as weekly dance and yoga activities, the Chequer Studio is also now holding contemporary dance, nursery play-dance, dancing for toddlers, balletone, jazz dance, bellydance yoga and street dance sessions. The studio is also available to hire. For times and prices, call Dan Ogier on (01353) 668119 or 07860 328481.

Workshop day

ENVIRONMENTAL artist Jane Frost is running a special workshop on Saturday. Jane, who specialises in textiles, will be teaching people about basic techniques and garden structures at Welney Wildfowl and Wetlands Trust. The workshop is running from 10am-4pm. For more information, including costs, call (01353) 861944.

Fun at station

A RANGE of activities are being held at the Stretham Old Engine Land Drainage Pumping Station on the Bank Holiday weekend. Open from 1.30pm-5pm, there will be children's trails, artefacts, book stalls and all the attractions of the station itself. Entry is £3 or £1 for concessions. For more information, call (01353) 648578.

Panto auditions

BUDDING actors listen up. Wilburton Theatre Group is holding pantomime auditions for its performance of The Pompeii Panto. Auditions are being held on Tuesday, September 1 and Tuesday, September 8, from 7.30pm-9.30pm on both evenings. They are running at St Peter's Hall, High Street, Wilburton.

Steaming in for a 36th vintage rally

BY JORDAN DAY

VINTAGE vehicles and shire horses will be the stars of the show in Haddenham next month.

Thousands of families are expected to flock to the village's annual steam rally on Saturday, September 12 and heavy horse show on Sunday, September 13.

Now in its 36th year, visitors will be treated to more than 200 vintage cars on show during the two-day event.

For those with a passion for tractors, the rally will boast more than 150 vintage examples, including a rare pair of Walsh and Clark Victoria paraffin engines built in 1921.

There will also be both full-size and miniature steam engines, bygone collections, commercial vehicles and motorcycles, and a special display to celebrate 90 years of steam and public works with local firm, Darby's of Sutton.

As well as the popular heavy horse show on the Sunday, shires will be seen working on site during both days.

There will also be demonstrations of steam threshing, baling, stone crushing, wood sawing and corn milling.

In the grand ring, the crowds will be thrilled by the 'Up and Over' motorcycle display team, who will be performing a range of nail-biting stunts and tricks.

Pauline Reader and her dancers will also be performing, as will Winston, the singing farmer, who will be bringing mirth, merriment and while family so come and enjoy what rural Cambridgeshire is all about."

The rally takes place on the A1421, just north of Haddenham and will be well-signposted.

Entry is £8 for adults, £6 for OAPs and £3 for children with a special family ticket for £20.

On site camping is available at £45, although pre-booking is advisable.

Parking is free and all money raised goes to support local causes.

Pluses and minuses of rain in summer

On my return from holiday, I was pleased to find that my garden didn't look as neglected as it usually does after two weeks away – thanks to the copious amounts of rain we've had this summer.

There are pros and cons to the washout summer we've had so far: watering is obviously not such an issue, but wet weather brings diseases and pests you might otherwise escape in the warmer, drier weather. Tomatoes and potatoes are likely to be the main casualties of excessive wet weather in the vegetable patch, says Guy Barter, horticultural advisor at the Royal Horticultural Society.

"The main problem is blight, which affects potatoes and tomatoes, and with the third wet year in succession gardeners are going to encounter a lot of blight problems. All you can do is remove infected plants," he says. Discoloured patches appear on the leaves, which develop white fluffy areas and often spread to tubers and fruits. Tomato plants decline in vigour, and their fruits are often affected.

The aftermath of blight should not be ignored. Don't grow potatoes in soil affected by blight for at least three years, use crop rotation to reduce the incidence of follow-on infection and always keep potato and tomato plants well apart. While tomatoes and potatoes may be suffering, many other crops will be benefiting, such as cabbages and leeks, Barter adds. Don't be too worried if your runner beans aren't performing as you'd expected, or if your pumpkins aren't ripening. In the last few years, late August and early September have been surprisingly dry, sunny and warm, so it could be that you get a well-deserved late harvest – so don't be too hasty in pulling up the plants. Fruit trees may also be doing well in the prolonged wet weather, although fruits will take longer to ripen.

Leading organic growing charity Garden Organic advises gardeners to check their fruit trees now. The copious amount of rainfall will mean that top fruit will be swelling, and therefore weighing down branches and putting them at risk of splitting. Reduce the number of fruits on the tree, and prop up branches if necessary, to stop this happening.

Rust and scab may also be more of a problem on fruit bushes and trees during wet summers – all you can do is take off and discard all infected material, as it's probably too late now to apply fungicides. Scab causes dark brown or green spots on foliage, and scabby, distorted fruit. Badly-affected shoots need to be cut out and burned.

Rust diseases revel in warm, moist conditions, so roses are most likely to be attacked towards the end of summer. Bright orange pustules appear on the undersides of the leaves and then turn black. Once you have removed infected leaves, burn them.

Weeds can be more of a problem during a wet summer, when they will grow more prolifically, but then water also moistens and loosens the soil, which makes them easier for you to pull out. Weed where possible the day after a heavy downpour to make your life easier.

Wet weather brings out some pests, but deters others. Slugs are the number-one nuisance during a prolonged wet spell, so be vigilant by setting slug traps or picking them off by hand. On the plus side, some pests are likely to be less prevalent.

"Insects thrive best in hot, dry weather. Rain in the summer usually catches pests such as aphids, caterpillars and cutworm at vulnerable stages," says Barter. The summer washout has created more work in some areas: hedges and lawns will have to be cut more often, while lawns may have developed fungal disease and will need to be spiked and drained in the autumn.

Some plants such as cannas, tender geraniums, petunias and nicotiana will suffer in wet weather as their flowers turn into a soggy mass or they develop downy mildew. However, you can give bedding plants such as petunias a good trim and then boost them with a liquid fertiliser and, if we have a warm, dry September, they may produce a riot of colour again.

BEST OF THE BUNCH

- Stipa
This large group of perennial grasses, featuring both evergreen and deciduous types, forms tufts of narrow foliage above which tall flower stems rustle in the wind, providing movement and texture to your garden.

You might go for a statement specimen such as Stipa gigantea (Spanish oat grass), which grows to 2.5 metres and whose flowers turn gold when ripe in summer. It looks beautiful planted with the tall, open Verbena bonariensis, giving an airy feel to any planting scheme.

I love the smaller S tenuissima, a wispy feather grass which looks wonderful as underplanting for tall, lollipop alliums, or next to brilliant crocosmia such as the vivid red 'Lucifer', accentuating the hue of the flowers.

Another smaller variety, S tenuifolia, produces mounds of fine, jade-green leaves topped with airy beige flowers from late spring to late summer. Like other stipas, it grows well on dry soils or in any reasonably fertile, well-drained soil in full sun.

Cut back deciduous species in early winter or spring, and divide clumps from mid-spring to early summer.

MILLER'S HOUSE
QUAYSIDE

62 & 64 Miller's House, Ely stand in one of the most unique and inspiring positions overlooking the Great River Ouse. It really is a view to buy for.

Historic architectural features have been restored and complimented with carefully designed additions forming two uplifting living spaces with views over the river from first floor sitting rooms and views of the imposing Cathedral to the rear. Both houses are connected to sunbathed, secluded and quiet outdoor spaces created using a combination of slim-strip hardwood decks, tumbled limestone and travertine. A walled, landscaped town garden can be enjoyed at 62, whilst 64 benefits from an enclosed courtyard and two roof terraces protected by a bespoke balustrade and planters filled with box hedge. Behind the Quayside elevations and under the traditional peg tiled roof, the interiors are classic in colour and materials. Twists of contemporary touches throughout seamlessly blend the old with the new.

YOUR GUIDE TO MOVING HOME

1 Moving home can be a complicated business and, in the hectic run to the big day, it is all too easy to forget something vital. The Property News offers their readers this handy checklist that should help avoid major pitfalls. We suggest you tick off the items as you deal with them...

WITH FOUR WEEKS TO GO:

- ☐ Get estimates from removal companies, checking that comprehensive insurance cover is available against damage or loss. Is there a packing and unpacking service? Confirm the date of your move with the firm you have chosen.
- ☐ Check on your home contents insurance policies to ensure that you are covered for the move, and covered at your new address.
- ☐ Make arrangements for your gas and electricity meters (plus water meters where relevant) to be read and all your appliances to be disconnected on the day of your move.
- ☐ Arrange to take over gas and electricity at your new address, and make sure that all appliances will be properly fitted, plumbed or connected.
- ☐ Notify British Telecom and ask them to make the necessary arrangements for a final account at your present address, and for taking over or installing telephone facilities at your new home.
- ☐ Arrange for change of address cards to be printed.

WITH TWO WEEKS TO GO:

- ☐ Confirm all arrangements, times etc, for meter readings, disconnections and reconnections, with authorities and with your buyer and seller.
- ☐ Make sure you have a good stock of packing materials, including sturdy boxes and plenty of string and sticky tape.
- ☐ Begin to throw out unwanted items from attics, wardrobes. What you really don't want you may as well dump now, or send to charity. It's a great time for a good sort out!

WITH ONE WEEK TO GO:

- ☐ Send off change of address cards.
- ☐ Arrange and pay for automatic redirection of your mail by the Post Office.
- ☐ Cancel and pay up accounts for routine delivery services such as milk, groceries, fuel and your Cambridge Evening News. Re-organise these deliveries for your new address.
- ☐ Defrost refrigerators in preparation for move and, if you are moving a freezer and its contents, turn it up to maximum for a couple of days before you move.

WITH ONE DAY TO GO:

- ☐ Complete your packing except for those items you are likely to need overnight, and prepare a picnic for moving day.
- ☐ Have a large enough cash 'float' available to deal with unexpected expenses, and make sure you have collected documents and valuables together in a safe place.
- ☐ Cover carpets which are being left behind, so as to minimise damage during furniture removal.
- ☐ Check through previous lists to make sure nothing has been overlooked, then enjoy a worry-free early night!

2 ON MOVING DAY:

- ☐ Strip beds and pack bedding and nightclothes.
- ☐ Pack items for washing/toiletries.
- ☐ Take down curtains.
- ☐ Take up rugs, carpets, floor coverings, as required.
- ☐ Dismantle any light fittings etc., not included in the sale.
- ☐ Turn off electric appliances.
- ☐ Disconnect cooker.
- ☐ Turn off boiler/central heating.
- ☐ Turn off water.
- ☐ Read gas meter.
- ☐ Read electricity meter.
- ☐ Secure all windows.
- ☐ Lock all doors.
- ☐ Leave key as arranged with new owners.
- ☐ On arrival at your new home, unpack slowly and methodically so that you can check for loss or damage.

3 EXTRA HINTS FOR A SMOOTH MOVE...

WHO TO NOTIFY:

- ☐ Banks.
- ☐ Building Societies.
- ☐ Credit companies.
- ☐ Insurance companies.
- ☐ Gas, Electricity and Water Boards.
- ☐ Telephone company.
- ☐ Local Authority (Rating Department).
- ☐ Driving Licence authorities.
- ☐ Inland Revenue.
- ☐ Store cards and accounts.
- ☐ Other lease, hire or rental companies.
- ☐ Employer.
- ☐ Doctor.
- ☐ Dentist.
- ☐ Schools.
- ☐ Professional Bodies/Trade Unions.
- ☐ Motoring organisations.
- ☐ Newsagent.
- ☐ Friends and relatives.

Scrappage boost for Korean cars

THE scheme to promote new car sales in Britain has done wonders for the car industry as a whole, but it will also prove a sharp upward turning point on Hyundai and Kia's popularity curve.

For years, Ford and Vauxhall have dominated the sales charts, but scrappage could change all that.

The two firms, Hyundai in particular, have piled on sales under the Government incentive.

Hyundai has a five-year, unlimited mileage warranty, as does Kia, which extends that to seven years on cee'd models.

Both brands offer sensibly-priced, cheap to run, maintain and insure motors that are appealing to the eye, and their ranges cater for all tastes from city-car lovers to fans of big off-landers.

And scrappage is helping take that message to British buyers in a very big way.

What's more, Hyundai and Kia have more models in the pipeline, dispensing with any perception of having a staid image.

Kia will be showing off a new supermini, the Venga, at Germany's Frankfurt Motor Show early next month, another move for the firm into haute couture hatchback territory.

This premium B-segment contender goes on sale in the UK early in 2010, and the Venga has an unusually long wheelbase for its class of 2.61 metres, which helps maximise cabin space.

Kia wants the supermini's generous interior to stretch it over into the Ford Focus's sales pitch, and buyers will be offered differing power choices in the 1.4-litre and 1.6-litre petrol engines, and 1.6-litre diesel.

Kia's UK managing director, Michael Cole, has his finger bang on the recession button when he says: "This is exactly the kind of vehicle UK motorists are looking for as we emerge from the recent economic turmoil – a flexible package providing big-car comfort and space within a compact package."

Not to be outdone, Hyundai is taking its new crossover, badged ix35, to Frankfurt next month and will replace its successful Tucson sports utility vehicle.

The ix35, like the other "i" models in the firm's range, has been conceived and engineered in Europe – but the Korean firm is saying little else until the crossover debuts in Germany.

In the meantime, Hyundai is rushing another 10,000 cars over here to cope with September's 59-plate demand, and dealers have taken on extra staff, with several planning to open around the clock to cope with the showroom surge.

The firm's UK arm says it has secured extra production of its popular i10, i20 and i30 models to meet demand for British buyers.

Looking good: The new Kia Venga supermini.

The new Peugeot RCZ: Stunning coupe.

Peugeot's new RCZ coupe all about fun

PEUGEOT says the launch of its new RCZ coupe in spring 2010 will mark a new chapter in the French firm's history.

The stunning coupe is aimed directly at customers who see their cars as a source of enjoyment as well as daily transport, says Peugeot, and there's two engines to choose from.

First up is a 1.6-litre petrol, in sporty 200bhp or lesser 156bhp guises, with the alternative a 2.0-litre, 163bhp diesel.

Six-speed manual or automatic gearboxes form the transmission choices, depending on powerplant, and the compact 2+2 coupe gets a smart double-bubble roof, with aluminium roof arches, a black roof panel and dark-tinted rear windscreen.

Prices are due closer to the on-sale date.

Pushing up the price of petrol

DRIVERS continue to be the victims of "false dawn" market speculation, cold-blooded fuel duty increases and retailers dragging their feet on wholesale price reductions, according to the AA's latest mid-monthly fuel price report.

Average UK petrol prices have risen almost 1.5p between mid July and mid August, from 102.95 to 104.43 pence per litre.

This is despite falling to 102.28 at the end of July, before yet another speculative surge in oil prices sent wholesale prices shooting up. UK families with two petrol cars are now paying £3.25 a month more on fuel than in mid July.

The continued glut of diesel supply kept average price rises to around half that of petrol, up from 104.06 pence per litre in mid July to 104.96 now. Diesel is a mere halfpenny more expensive than petrol, reflecting price parity in many fuel stations across the UK.

Less aggressive pricing by most supermarkets, with only half of early July's fall in wholesale petrol prices passed on to consumers, has opened the door for independent and other non-supermarket fuel stations to muscle in on cheaper fuel territory.

Shell and Jet outlets, averaging respectively 103.67 and 103.03 pence per litre, are challenging supermarkets Tesco (103.09) and Morrison (103.10) hard on price. Asda continues to dictate the pace of cheap fuel in the areas it has a fuel presence, its 101.65 average for petrol more than a penny cheaper than nearest rival Sainsbury's at 102.67.

Paul Watters, head of AA public affairs, said: "For the second time this summer, market speculators have pumped up the price of oil until some fundamental economic indicator, like US unemployment or consumer spending, has revealed weak signs of recovery to be yet another false dawn. At this point, the speculators cash in their profits while drivers and businesses pay for them later."

Porsche takes sport to the extreme

PORSCHE has announced the most sporting road-going 911 yet – the next generation 911 GT3 RS.

Offering increased engine power, lower weight, shorter transmission ratios and a chassis optimised to an even higher standard, the new 911 GT3 RS sets the foundation for the racing version of the 911 GT3.

The GT3 RS thus provides the key ingredients for extending the unparalleled racing record of Porsche and continues the series of absolute, uncompromised, motor sport-oriented editions of the 911 which can trace their roots back to the classic Carrera RS 2.7 of 1973.

The heart of the new GT3 RS, the power unit, is based on the flat-six cylinder "boxer" engine already featured in the 911 GT3. Like the latter, the RS power unit now displaces 3.8 instead of 3.6-litres, but this new model is tuned to deliver even more power and rev even faster and more dynamically.

The engine delivers 15 hp more than its counterpart in the 911 GT3, providing a maximum output of 450 hp from the naturally-aspirated power unit. This is 35 hp more than the prior model GT3 RS, and translates into a specific output of more than 118 hp per litre from the six-cylinder, an extremely high figure for a non-turbocharged engine. And unlike many other high-performance drivetrains, the power unit in the new GT3 RS remains well suited to everyday use.

The new 911 GT3 RS comes exclusively with a six-speed manual gearbox which is also optimised for low weight and high efficiency.

To enhance the level of performance throughout the entire range of engine and road speeds, the gears have a shorter transmission ratio than on the 911 GT3, deliberately making concessions in terms of even higher top speed.

The new 911 GT3 RS features Porsche Active Suspension Management (PASM) which, for the first time, has been purpose-built and specially set-up to further improve the sporting behaviour of the chassis.

With a wider track not only at the rear but also on the front axle, the body of the new 911 GT3 RS is widened accordingly. For the new car, the use of additional wheel arch covers increases the span across the nose. Beneath these pronounced front arches sit 9-inch wide wheels with 245/35 ZR 19 sports tyres, and 12-inch wide wheels with 325/30 ZR 19 sports tyres sit at the rear.

Porsche Active Drivetrain Mounts (PADM) are featured as standard and raise the driving dynamics of the new 911 GT3 RS to an even higher level.

Porsche is also introducing a lithium-ion battery, which reduces weight by more than 10 kg (22 lb).

The Porsche 911 GT3 RS will go on sale in the UK and Ireland in February 2010 priced from £100,760. Further technical and specification details will be confirmed nearer the on-sale date.

Light and agile: Porsche 911 GT3 RS is a down and out racer, yet it's well suited to everyday use.

Cheapest insurance is surprise

YOUNG motorists opting for third-party only motor insurance in a bid to save money may find that this is no longer the way to cut the cost of their premiums, according to moneysupermarket.com.

The UK's leading price comparison site analysed the average cost of annual motor insurance policies for male and female motorists across the age-scale.

The research reveals, despite offering the lowest level of cover, third-party only is the most expensive option for motorists, especially younger drivers, followed by third party, fire and theft.

Fully comprehensive policies offer the most level of cover yet the lowest premiums.

The research found on average third-party only cover for a driver under the age of 21 is £1,434 and 50 per cent more expensive than opting for fully comprehensive insurance at £955. The average premium for third-party fire and theft costs £1,118 and 17 per cent over the cost of fully comprehensive cover.

Tips to younger drivers to cut motor insurance costs:

- Shop around.
- Buy online.
- Mileage limit.
- Car security.
- Pass Plus.

Infiniti: M saloon goes on sale next month.

Infiniti range gets M boost

INFINITI'S new M saloon goes on sale throughout Europe in September, and this third-generation model will be offered with powerful V6 engines: one petrol, one diesel.

These 2011 model-year Infinitis will feature a completely redesigned body, with sports-saloon proportions and evocative new styling.

Equipment includes an advanced climate-control system, superior audio and an industry-first Side-Collision Prevention system.

The system alerts the driver if another vehicle is detected during an intended lane change, and helps prevent a potential collision by moving the vehicle towards the centre of the original lane of travel.

Prices are not yet available.

Change to law will 'trivialise' offence

Careless driving 'needs fixed penalties'

A DRIVING charity has joined the Magistrates' Association (MA) in criticising Government plans to widen police powers to issue fixed penalty notices for careless drivers.

The Institute of Advanced Motorists (IAM) said issuing careless driving tickets was too light a punishment for the offence.

IAM policy director Neil Greig said: "A simpler procedure may persuade officers to deal with more serious cases by fixed penalty notices, rather than the more appropriate – but more time-consuming – prosecution and court appearance.

"Offences range from very bad driving – which could have been charged as dangerous but wasn't – to minor parking knocks. It is generally dependent on the surrounding facts, witness testimony and the courts' interpretation of them. As such, the IAM feels that careless driving should not be included in the list of fixed penalty notices."

The MA "vehemently opposed" proposals to allow police officers to punish careless driving with a £60 fine and three licence points.

Chris Hunt-Cooke, chairman of the MA's road traffic committee, said: "Police officers may have seen the incident themselves, in which case they will be acting as witness, prosecutor, judge and jury, deciding on guilt and then sentencing the offence.

"Alternatively, they will be relying on the evidence of others, which the driver may not have the opportunity to challenge properly, and they may be deciding whether or not to issue a fixed penalty at the roadside in the highly charged atmosphere of the immediate aftermath of an accident.

"The MA believes that such a decision should be made in the calmer conditions of a court hearing, when the evidence for each side can be presented and considered by those trained and experienced in doing so."

The IAM called for the Department of Transport (DfT) to campaign proactively to improve driver behaviour, rather than "devising methods of making careless driving prosecutions simpler and more attractive to police officers".

Mr Greig said: "We would have been prepared to support the proposal if it was shown that it would lead to an improvement in driving standards and a reduction in casualties – or even an improvement in the obviously deteriorating quality of police prosecutions."

A DfT spokesman said: "The Department for Transport runs successful campaigns throughout the year aimed at improving driver behaviour in specific areas such as drink-driving, seatbelt wearing and speeding.

"In addition, our new road safety strategy makes it clear that the department is committed to encouraging responsible road user behaviour from everyone whether they are drivers, cyclists or pedestrians but that effective enforcement is necessary to detect and deter the irresponsible minority from flouting the law."

AA Insurance said it is concerned the proposals could trivialise the offence and lead to a sharp increase in the number of fixed penalty notices issued and consequent increases in car insurance premiums.

"A careless driving offence with a £1,000 fine and say, six penalty points would be taken much more seriously than, for example, a fixed penalty for a speeding offence. It could double a driver's insurance premium or even make it difficult to find insurance at all.

"This in itself acts as an important deterrent. But making careless driving a fixed penalty would not only reduce that deterrent effect, but reduce it to a similar status as other fixed penalties, leading to a sharp rise in the number of relatively small premium increases."

Second to none.

Responsible drivers scrap their vehicles
at an Authorised Treatment Facility (ATF)

Because only an ATF can legally scrap a vehicle. That means any pollutants will be made safe before it's recycled in an environmentally friendly way.

What's more, for certain types of vehicle you'll get a DVLA approved
Certificate of Destruction (CoD).
A CoD proves that the ATF has told DVLA your vehicle has been scrapped and so is no longer your responsibility.

ROAD TRAFFIC REGULATION ACT 1984 - SECTION 14(1)(a)

THE A14 AND A428 TRUNK ROADS (MADINGLEY TO NINE MILE HILL INTERCHANGE, CAMBRIDGESHIRE) (TEMPORARY RESTRICTION AND PROHIBITION OF TRAFFIC) ORDER 2009

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Secretary of State for Transport has made an Order on the A14 and A428 Trunk Roads in Cambridgeshire to enable carriageway repairs, to include planning, resurfacing and associated work to be carried out in safety.

The works are expected to begin on or after Monday 7 September 2009 and last for approximately 8 weeks. The Order will come into force on 1 September 2009 and have a maximum duration of eighteen months.

The effect of the Order will be to –

- impose a 50 miles per hour speed limit, in the interest of safety to slow traffic down prior to carriageway closures, on the –
 - eastbound carriageway of the A428 from a point 1.20 kilometres west of its junction with the exit slip road leading to Cambridge Road, Madingley, to its merge with the A14 east of the A14/A428/M11 Giron Interchange, Junction 31,
 - eastbound carriageway of the A14 from its merge with the A428 east of the A14/A428/M11 Giron Interchange, Junction 31 to its junction with the exit slip road leading to the A14/A1303 Stow Cum Quoy Interchange, Junction 35,
 - westbound carriageway of the A14 between points 1.20 kilometres east and 13 kilometres west of its junction with the entry slip road leading from the A14/A11/A1303 Nine Mile Hill Interchange, Junction 36;
 - A428 eastbound exit slip road leading to Cambridge Road, Madingley,
 - A14 eastbound exit slip road leading to the A14/A10 Milton Interchange, Junction 33, and
 - A14 westbound exit slip road leading to the A14/A1303 Stow Cum Quoy Interchange, Junction 35; and
- close the –
 - eastbound carriageway of the A428 between its junctions with the exit slip road leading to Cambridge Road, Madingley and the entry slip road leading from the M11 Motorway at the A14/A428/M11 Giron Interchange, Junction 31,
 - eastbound carriageway of the A14 from its junction with the exit slip road leading to the A14/A10 Milton Interchange, Junction 33 to the point where the A11 northbound merges with the A14 eastbound at Nine Mile Hill Interchange, Junction 36,
 - westbound carriageway of the A14 from the point of access to the A11 southbound to its junction with the entry slip road leading from the A1303 at Nine Mile Hill Interchange, Junction 36,
 - westbound carriageway of the A14 between its junction with the exit slip road leading to the A14/A1303 Stow Cum Quoy Interchange, Junction 35 and the entry slip road leading from the A14/A10 Milton Interchange, Junction 33;
 - westbound exit and eastbound entry slip roads leading to and from the A14/A10 Milton Interchange, Junction 33,
 - westbound entry and eastbound exit slip roads leading from and to the A14/Horingssea Road Fen Ditton Interchange, Junction 34, and
 - westbound entry and eastbound exit slip roads leading from and to the A14/A1303 Stow Cum Quoy Interchange, Junction 35; and
 - layby adjacent to the –
 - eastbound carriageway of the A428 situated –
 - 0.32 kilometres,
 - 0.97 kilometres,
 - 1.94 kilometres, or
 - 2.90 kilometres,
 east of the exit slip road leading to Cambridge Road, Madingley;
 - eastbound carriageway of the A14 situated –
 - 0.68 kilometres east of the entry slip road leading from the A14/B1050 Bar Hill Interchange,
 - 0.33 kilometres east of the centre point of the Oakington Road overbridge at Dry Drayton Interchange, Junction 30,
 - 0.63 kilometres east of the entry slip road leading from the A14/B1049 Histon Interchange,
 - 0.45 kilometres west of the exit slip road leading to the A14/A10 Milton Interchange, Junction 33,
 - 0.45 kilometres east of the entry slip road leading from the A14/A10 Milton Interchange, Junction 33,
 - 0.19 kilometres east of the exit slip road leading to the A14/Horingssea Road Fen Ditton Interchange, Junction 34,
 - 0.71 kilometres west of the centre point of Low Fen Drive Way overbridge, and
 - 0.57 kilometres east of the exit slip road leading to Junction 35
 - 0.54 kilometres east of the centre point of Little Wilbraham Road overbridge
 - 0.33 kilometres east of the centre point of Heath Road overbridge; and
 - westbound carriageway of the A14 situated –
 - 0.89 kilometres east of the centre point of Swaffham Heath Road overbridge,
 - 0.33 kilometres east of the centre point of Heath Road overbridge,
 - 0.53 kilometres east of the centre point of Little Wilbraham Road overbridge,
 - 0.62 kilometres west of the entry slip road leading from the A14/A1303 Stow Cum Quoy Interchange, Junction 35,
 - 0.31 kilometres west of the centre point of Low Fen Drive Way overbridge, and
 - 0.32 kilometres east of the centre point of Horingssea Road overbridge.

The works will take place overnight between the hours of –

- 8pm and 6am the following mornings, Mondays to Wednesdays and Sundays,
- 8pm Thursdays – 7am Fridays,
- 9pm Fridays – 6am Saturdays, and
- 7pm Saturdays – 9am Sundays.

The laybys will remain closed 24 hours daily throughout the duration of the works.

Clearly signed diversion routes will be in operation during the closures. Should you require further information regarding these diversion routes please contact the Highways Agency on the telephone number given below.

The temporary mandatory speed limit (which will not apply to emergency service vehicles), carriageway, slip road and layby closures (which will not apply to works, emergency service, traffic officer or winter service maintenance vehicles) and diversion routes will be clearly indicated by traffic signs throughout the works.

Work fears over swine flu

WITH increasing numbers of cases recorded, the swine flu pandemic could become a serious threat to East Anglian businesses.

Pure Resourcing Solutions has carried out a survey to see just how informed the regional companies are to this current potential threat and what, if any, procedures have they put in place.

Media coverage and Government warnings on the impending threat of swine flu continue to grow and if figures are to be believed around 30 per cent of the public will be effected from August to November with employee rates for illness potentially reaching 12 per cent of the British workforce during peak weeks.

Pure's survey, which was sent out to more than 5,000 companies, shows that East Anglian businesses have taken heed of the information and advice being given. More than 90 per cent say they are happy with the information they have received from local governing bodies, and 96 per cent felt they had a good understanding of what symptoms they need to look out for. Nearly 80 per cent of business admitted the outbreak of swine flu was a concern to their business with 66 per cent already having a contingency plan in place, with 72 per cent having introduced precautionary measures such as:

■ Enforced home working for period of incubation if someone shows initial signs.

■ Open window policy instead of air conditioning.

■ Bacterial wipes and hand sanitisers on all desks.

■ "At risk" staff allowed to work from home.

■ Phones, keyboards, door handles and public areas cleaned daily.

■ Posters around the office, regular emails with Government information and company policy.

■ Replacing hand towels with warm hand dryers.

■ Review of absence reporting procedures.

■ Contingency plan for redeployment of staff.

Although there is an element of scepticism about the level of threat with 77 per cent of people thinking that the media are overhyping the dangers, an incredible 65 per cent of companies said they would turn away a customer or client that they suspected were showing symptoms.

Gill Buchanan, director of Pure Resourcing Solutions said: "Businesses need to be prepared for all eventualities in today's markets. The recession has hit some companies hard and several have been downsizing their workforce, if the pandemic does spread as predicted, many businesses' productivity and output could suffer."

"From speaking to our clients in East Anglia, as a region we seem to be very much on the ball. It's important to be prepared and have a contingency plan with regular updates and communication with your team."

Be prepared: Gill Buchanan

Your CV

When you send your CV off to a potential employer, remember that you won't be the only one. Hundreds of other people could be applying for the job as well.

So what are you going to do to make you stand out from the crowd? Why should an employer take a chance on you instead of someone else?

Your CV is your first real chance to sell yourself to a potential employer. Most employers will scan through a CV in about 30 seconds so you need to grab their attention from the start - and make them want to invite you for an interview.

There are five main areas to consider when writing your CV:

- Make sure your CV looks the part. Your CV should look clean and tidy - don't scrawl it out on a piece of A4 paper. If you haven't got access to a PC or printer, ask a friend or use your local library. Use a good quality paper and steer clear of fancy borders and front covers.
- Watch out for silly spelling and grammar mistakes. They make you look lazy and show employers that you don't really care. It's not difficult to do a spell check on your PC and if you're really stuck then don't just guess, reach for a dictionary. Get a friend to read through your CV for you - a second opinion is always useful.
- Make sure your CV is well organised. When you list your previous jobs, make sure the dates are correct and try not to leave any gaps. If you took time out to go travelling then say so - employers won't mark you down just because you've tried something new.
- Don't waffle. Remember that employers don't have time to read every word of your CV. Long paragraphs and sentences put people off, so try bullet-points to break up text. Make sure your CV is no longer than two pages long - employers don't want your life history, they just want to see that you've got what it takes to do the job.
- Don't list any failures. Employers have enough trouble finding someone who is right for the job - they don't need help finding reasons not to employ you. If you have to include a mistake from your past, make sure you show the employer that you learnt something from the experience.

Keep it simple

Personal details

Start off with your full name, address, date of birth, home and mobile phone numbers, email address and nationality. If you are offered an interview, the employer will want to get hold of you so give him as many options as possible.

Summary/professional profile

This is the No1 area for selling yourself. Set out your main skills and personal qualities but keep it interesting and tight - one paragraph should do to cover everything.

Education and qualifications

List your qualifications and education history, with the most recent first. You don't need to list the grades for each exam you have passed unless they were exceptional results - simply listing the number and type of exams you've passed is fine. Also, list any relevant professional organisations you belong to and training courses you have been on.

Work experience

Start with your most recent position and work backwards, giving addresses along with start and finish dates. Set out your main responsibilities, duties and most importantly achievements, along with any skills you picked up or improvements you made while you were there. This is a really important section in your CV so make it count - but don't waffle.

If you have not had a full-time job before, detail any part-time jobs you may have held or any placement you have been on.

Other skills

Set out any computer skills you may have and the software you are most familiar with. Can you type, do shorthand or speak a foreign language fluently? If you have a driving licence, let the employer know. If it's clean, tell them.

Interests & hobbies

Briefly list what you get up to in your spare time. Put down any positions you hold in clubs or associations, along with any responsibilities and achievements.

References

Make sure you have at least two people (including one from your previous or current job) who will tell an employer what a thoroughly nice person you are and what a potential asset to the company you would be.

If you want to list them now make sure you include their name, job title, postal & e-mail address and contact phone numbers. Alternatively, just put "Available on request" so the employer knows to follow up references at a later date.

Add a covering letter

The main aim of a covering letter is to encourage an employer to give you a chance. You want them to read your CV, so sell it to them. You should always enclose a covering letter when applying for a job - most employers won't consider you unless you do.

A covering letter should let the employer know why you are interested in the job and why you think you can do it.

The hints and tips below should point you in the right direction:

- Keep it simple. A covering letter should be short and to the point - no more than six paragraphs.
- Mention the job. If you are replying to an advert, mention what the job is and where you saw it. The company may be advertising for other positions and it may not be clear which job you are applying for.
- Sell yourself. Explain why you are the perfect candidate for the job. Show off your strengths and experience. Refer to your CV - if it goes missing then at least an employer will know that you've sent it.
- Check it for mistakes. A silly spelling mistake in a covering letter is likely to cost you your chance of getting an interview. Also, make sure it is addressed to the right person in the right department.

A covering letter can be just as important as a CV in getting you an interview. It's your first point of contact with your potential employer - so make it count.

Ace Bates' fine carp haul sets match record

TIM Bates broke the match record on Snake Lake as he netted an excellent 201lb 10oz and won the Fenland Rods AC fixture at Headfen Lakes Fishery.

His whopping bag contained 96 carp at the Little Downham venue, while second-placed Mathew Lutkin mustered 134lb.

Dave Rodwell was celebrating after winning the latest £2,150 Headfen Masters qualifier with a 57-carp haul for 108lb.

Details – Fenland Rods: 1 Tim Bates 201lb 10oz, 2 Mathew Lutkin 134lb, 3 Kevin Lee 114-4. Headfen Masters: 1 Dave Rodwell (Shipshape Tackle) 108lb, 2 Trevor Oakman (Fox Match Stanjy) 92-6, 3 Marcus Bailey (Headfen Lakes) 82-12.

■ Ian Darler was named Cambridge Fish Preservation's summer champion after winning their sixth and final league match. He captured 120 bleak for 5lb 4oz on the Hundred Foot at Sutton, while runner-up Neil Dominguez took 3-7½.

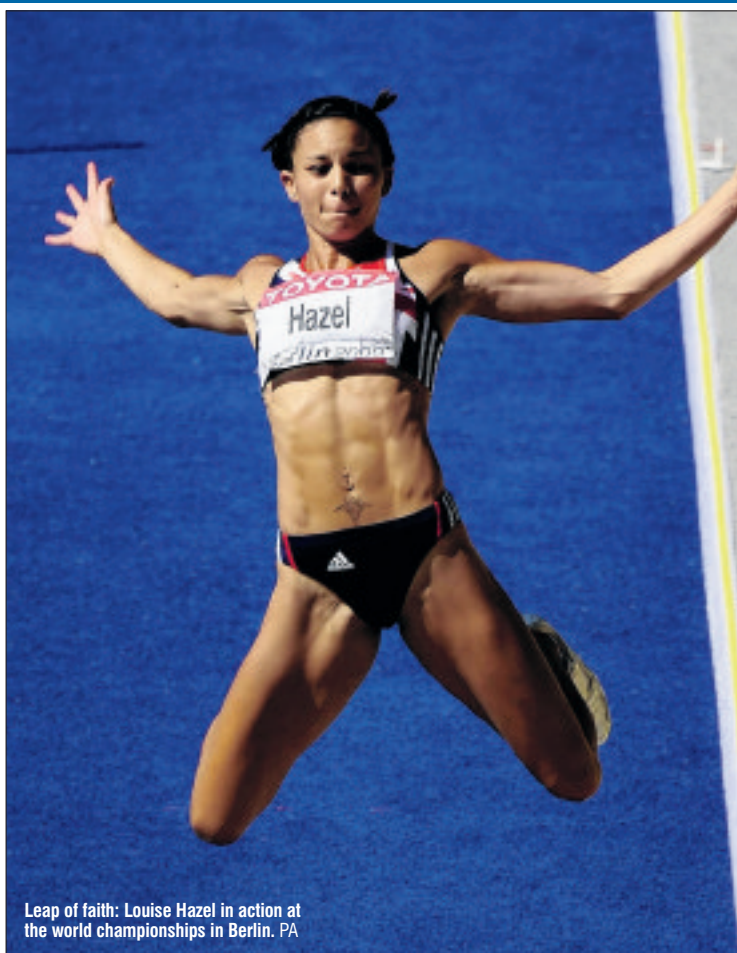

Application forms are now available at www.cambridge-fpas.co.uk and at local tackle shops for the society's Junior, OAPs and Ladies Match on September 12. For more information, call John Pope on 01223 515458.

■ Alan Oakes compiled a mighty 273lb bag and came top of the tree on Sunday at Ely's High Flyer Lake.

A 196lb haul was good enough for Dave Pearce to win Saturday's fixture, and Fred Nixon was top dog on Tuesday with 187lb to his name.

Details – Sunday: 1 Alan Oakes (Popletts) 273lb, 2 John Pesci (Voland Roofing) 182lb, 3 J Crown (King's Lynn) 165lb. Saturday: 1 Dave Pearce (Wisbech) 196lb, 2 Fred Nixon (High Flyer) 173lb, 3 John Pesci (Voland Roofing) 132lb. Tuesday: 1 Fred Nixon (High Flyer) 187lb, 2 K Leeder (Attleborough) 166lb, 3 John Pesci (Voland Roofing) 156lb.

ATHLETICS

Leap of faith: Louise Hazel in action at the world championships in Berlin. PA

Hazel aiming to March further up world order

LOUISE Hazel was delighted to play a supporting role to new British world heptathlon champion Jessica Ennis – but she's also eyeing a place in the spotlight.

The March athlete notched a season's best 6,008 heptathlon points' score, good enough to secure her 14th place at the World Championships in Berlin.

Ennis dominated the headlines after becoming the first British multi-eventer to win a world title since Daley Thompson's decathlon triumph in Helsinki 26 years ago.

But Hazel says she's learned a lot from being up close and personal to the bright new star of British athletics.

"It's been great to be part and parcel of this, being with Jess for these last few weeks, both at the training camp and here, has been amazing," said Hazel.

"We cheer each other on, really. It's nice to have that come down after each event, have a giggle and just make some funny comments to one another."

"We are there for each other through and through. That's what us Brits are all about – fresh talent."

But Hazel is determined to be more than just a foil for Ennis in the build-up to London 2012; the 23 year old also wants to make her mark. "I'm glad to get to 6,000 points," she added. "There are aspects I'd like to improve but just wait until 2012, that's what I say."

"Let's throw some medals out there again. We'll be better, stronger and older."

Hazel will now look to a packed 2010 schedule, which includes the European Championships in Barcelona and the Commonwealth Games in Delhi.

She will leave Berlin with two new personal bests – jumping 1.71m in the high jump and concluding the seven-discipline with a storming 2:15.85 personal best in the 800m.

In addition she produced an impressive season's best in the 200m. "There is still work to be done," she added. "My coach Julie Hollman is an absolute star. She's been to the Olympic Games and she knows what it's all about."

Adams eyeing Trophy boost

JOHN Adams states that he is building a side "with one eye on next season" after landing the latest hot prospect to emerge from Australia for Mildenhall.

Having seen the Fen Tigers' final hopes of a play-off spot torn apart in a crushing 60-35 defeat at Plymouth on Friday, Adams moved to seal the capture of Sydney-based 17-year-old Taylor Poole to bolster the side as they attempt an assault on the National Trophy competition.

"We have had Taylor watched for a few weeks now," said Tigers team boss Adams. "He has excellent equipment and comes highly recommended having impressed in some spins at Peterborough and Coventry."

"I want to finish the season strongly and I have one eye on next season with the youthful riders we are bringing in as we want to win some silverware."

"We now have seven very young and hungry riders in a side that is full of panache and I'm sure will excite the fans."

"We now have the heat leader strength we wanted and Oliver

Looking ahead: Mildenhall Fen Tigers manager John Adams.

(Rayson) has coped with the No 2 berth admirably. Nick (Laurence) has done a sterling job since coming in and Joe (Jacobs) will now have to move into the main body of the team, which he is relishing.

"It is an invaluable opportunity to gain more experience."

Poole, son of former Peterborough rider Mick Poole, is recovering from a broken foot sustained in racing a month ago back home and, despite having screws in to help heal the break, he has been declared fit to ride.

The teenager expects to fly back to Australia at the end of September.

The rider to make way is Dean Felton, who Adams revealed had spent £2,000 on new equipment recently. The 40 year old, riding in his final season in the sport, had struggled to perform to his best.

Plymouth: Simmonds 12 (4), Hughes 12 (5), Stephens 11 (4), Starke 10+4 (5), Gough 7+2 (4), Bates 6+2 (4), Stoneman 2 (4).

Mildenhall: Birkinshaw 14 (5), Evans 7 (4), Priest 6 (5), Felton 4+1 (4), Laurence 2 (4), Rayson 1+1 (4), Jacobs 1 (4).

■ Mildenhall signed off their home league campaign in superb fashion with a devastating 57-35 defeat of league leaders Weymouth.

New signing Poole completed a fine debut with a couple of excellent blasts from the back, while James Birkinshaw and Barrie Evans were in equally impressive form, with West Row buzzing from the win ahead of the Trophy fixtures.

Ely pair restore pride, but fail to avoid defeat

KINGSHUK Dasgupta and captain Jonny Wallace rescued City of Ely from total embarrassment, but their efforts were in vain as the hosts were beaten by six wickets by Yelling in CCA Senior League, Division Two.

Ely were in early trouble on 11 for 4 before Dasgupta struck 55 and Wallace 37, but Steve Tack took 3 for 26 and Sam Johnson 3 for 43 as they were dismissed for 161.

Aaron Johnson survived a scare before hitting the definitive knock. He looked as if he was heading back to the pavilion on a duck after being clean bowled only for the umpire to call a no ball.

He made the most of it by hammering two sixes and 11 fours on his way to an unbeaten 89 as Yelling produced 165 for 4.

Anthony Palmer did the damage with the ball and Malcolm Berry with the bat in Chatteris' six-wicket victory over Great Chishill in Division Three.

Tom Picton-Turberville, 13, belied his age with a mature 57 as visitors Great Chishill set a total of 137 for 8, Palmer grabbing 4 for 28.

Berry then managed 38 as Chatteris did enough to come through with 138 for 4.

Girton remain on course to win the remaining promotion berth after beating Littleport away by 62 runs. They were all out for 154, but then skittled the hosts out for 92.

Nigel Pate hammered 65 as Witcham ran out winners by 96 runs at Milton II in Cricket Stick CCA Junior League, Division 1A.

Pate was backed up by Simon

Cooper (55), Ian Housden (55 not out) and Glen Griffiths (43 not out) as Witcham set a target of 262 for 3.

Steve McHugh top-scored with 58, but Milton were held to 166 for 9 with Graham Holden taking 3 for 28.

In 2A, Doddington II won by 14 runs at fellow strugglers Wilburton, with Pat O'Connor top-scoring with 35 as they posted 148 for 6.

Ian Jacobs (45) and Lee Newton added 59 for the sixth wicket, but Wilburton fell short with 134 for 6.

Nick Mingay's 61 was not enough as Soham lost by two wickets at Over II in 3A.

Mingay's efforts were in vain when Sean Willis took 4 for 39 and Over skipper Dan Coulson 4 for 41 to bowl the visitors out for 170.

Andy Fox cracked 36 to help Over to victory with 172 for 8.

EVERY CHANCE: Nick Mingay's half-century gave Soham a chance of victory.

■ LITTLEPORT Rangers have been given a major boost ahead of the new season. Their quest for more silverware and success has been backed by National Express, who have awarded the club funding following a submission from club founder, vice chairman and coach Allan Williams. Williams, who is an East Anglia train driver, successfully acquired £250 for the club. Williams said: "The team is a big thing for Littleport. As well as keeping the kids active, it also brings parents and children together through the club's social events." The club are the first recipients of charitable funds from National Express' new community panel. Made up of a group of 10 National Express employees, the panel was set up to encourage staff to get involved in charitable activities and offer financial support.

Sign up for Aquathon

PLACES are still available for youngsters to enter the Ely Aquathon.

The event, which is to be held at The King's School, Ely, on Sunday, September 6 from 10am to 1pm, is for children between the ages of nine and 16, who will need to be able to swim 100m and run 800m.

There are a few places remaining for boys and girls, aged between nine and 13, while the 14-to-16 age group has plenty of spaces available.

Entry is free, with every aquathon competitor receiving a commemorative T-shirt and medal, and forms are available from Specsavers in Ely High Street. The aquathon is being held to coincide with Ely's first triathlon, although all the places for that race are now taken.

Reed's red does little to temper onslaught

NOT even the second-half dismissal of Callum Reed could halt Soham as they cruised to a convincing win at Aylesbury.

The defender was shown a second yellow card in the 53rd minute after pulling back an Aylesbury forward, but Rangers were already 3-0 up by then and they had little difficulty scoring one more and maintaining their clean sheet.

Deakan Napier put Rangers ahead as early as the sixth minute after a good run by Charles Libam, and the lead was doubled two minutes later when Dubi Ogbonna latched on to a good through ball before slotting past the stranded Aylesbury keeper.

Aylesbury United 0 Soham Town Rangers 4

ZAMARETTO LEAGUE, DIVISION ONE MIDLANDS

An acrobatic finish by Michael Simpson made it 3-0 at the break and Rangers looked to be on course for a hatful of goals until Reed's sending-off.

The visitors were still comfortable with 10 men, though, and in the 80th minute, Libam ran down the right before crossing for Andy Furnell to nod home Soham's fourth.

"We thoroughly deserved this win," said Rangers manager Ian Benjamin. "Unlike last season, we're creating a lot of chances. We also defended really well and it was good to keep a clean sheet."

On Reed's sending off, Benjamin added: "His first booking in the first half was harsh, but for the second time he knew he was on a yellow, so he needs to learn from that."

■ A single goal was enough to condemn Soham to their second league defeat – a 1-0 loss to Sudbury – on Tuesday night.

After a goalless first half which Soham dominated, the visitors took the lead in the 53rd minute.

Rangers' efforts to get back into the game were thwarted by the Sudbury defence with Andy Furnell seeing two good efforts saved by the Sudbury keeper.

■ Soham are next in action on Saturday when they meet St Ives in the FA Cup preliminary round.

'Offside goal put us on the back foot' – angry Munns

ELY City boss Trevor Munns was left fuming after what he described as a controversial offside decision gifted Kirkley & Pakefield an early initiative on their way to a narrow victory in the Ridgeons League, Premier Division.

A Kirkley player ran through in the 10th minute but, despite appearing yards offside, the referee waved play on and the striker netted the game's opener.

"It was a disappointing decision," said Munns. "The player looked to be five yards offside. It was disappointing and put us on the back foot."

City's Richard Chadwick missed a great chance to equalise on the half-hour mark and then a minute later the visitors went down the other end and doubled their lead.

It was a cruel passage of play for Ely and proved crucial in the outcome of the match. Simon Warren (right), who moved from defence into midfield after half time as the hosts looked to get more of a grip on the game, was far more influential after the break.

Ely City 1 Kirkley & Pakefield 2

RIDGEONS LEAGUE, PREMIER DIVISION

But he was also guilty of missing a clear chance to score, firing over five minutes before full-time. Grant Robins did eventually pull one back in stoppage time but it was too little, too late.

"We were off the pace from the start," added Munns. "We got a bad decision against us and we let that affect us in the first half. In this league we've got to punish teams when we get chances. It's a hard lesson to learn, but we've got to take our chances."

Ely faced a trip to Histon reserves last night before travelling to Debenham on Saturday.
